I am God's privileged child

Ram Singh Rathor

RAM Singh Rathor, a renowned businessman, eminent sports administrator, and philanthropist, considers himself a 'servant of humanity' who wants to take forward the mission of Baisakhi, which is the spirit of giving. He recently organised a Baisakhi Ki Shaam with Gurdas Maan, and the event was a resounding success. Apart from being well-organised, it served the noble cause of helping pediatric cancer patients and their families.

1) How do you feel about the show's overwhelming success?
Thanks for your encouraging words. We are happy with people's participation and their contribution towards the cause. The outcome of two months of efforts was very encouraging.

2) Can you tell us more about your organisation?
We do not have a formal organisation, as we do not work at the moment. It is just an initiative by some like-minded people, who came together on a common platform to celebrate Baisakhi with a difference.

3) What was the difference? Why did you decide to celebrate Baisakhi with a social cause?
Today, we are living in the era of multitasking. At one given point, we want to achieve multiple goals. Hence, combining them comes naturally to us. You may be aware that Baisakhi is an ancient cultural festival of Punjab which got special status in 1699, when Sahib Ji Guru Gobind Singh Ji made Khalsa panth on the day of Baisakhi. So this is celebrated as the birth anniversary of Khalsa panth. We decided to add the Gurus' sewa angle to this Baisakhi. Sikh Gurus always preach and practice the concept of sewa for the entire mankind.

4) Why have you chosen to address cancer as your cause?
Cancer is painful. Pediatric cancer is not just painful, it is an agony beyond words. It cripples the whole family. Poor families leave their homes, with their lands, and go to extreme lengths to get treatment for their little ones. While dealing with cancer in one's own family shouldn't be a huge gesture from one person, it has lost its appeal. And as for you, it will give courage and hope to the family that has lost it all. And as for you, it will touch your soul in the deepest place and will bring peace like nothing else. Let's aim ourselves with benevolence, and help a family fight this dreaded disease.

5) How you want to help this cause

Further?
We are already in touch with NGOs like Bharat Sevashram Sangha, Tata Memorial Hospital, NK Dhabbar Cancer Foundation and Deepshikha Sharma, and always look forward to making a contribution that will be beneficial to the needy.

6) What other social initiatives you have taken?
Recently, on the occasion of 350th birth anniversary of Shri Guru Gobind Singh Ji, we started a mass blood donation drive called Baita Daan Manavaa Ki Naam, which was a pure India drive. We got tremendous response and lots of blessings from all segments of society.

7) What is your inspiration?
The real inspiration comes from the real practices of our Sikh Gurus. The habit of performing the physical sewa was developed since childhood by joining Sewa. Jaiya Bombay, I would like to thank my father Sardar Dalip Singh Rathor, who made me a member of Sewa. Jaiya Bombay, when I was merely five. He taught me the importance of doing sewa in Jaiya Bandhi. I feel honoured to be the president of Sewa. Jaiya Bombay, which was established in 1932 and has a great influence on my overall personality and social deeds.

Words of praise from those who matter

I witnessed an electrifying performance by Gurdas Maan at the recently organised event, Baisakhi Ki Shaam. FOREWORD

Sundeep Sharma

Sikhism is founded on the principles of Sarbat da bhalla - working towards the common good. In a time when the global community is increasingly turning to exclusion and partisanship, our community becomes a beacon to guide the society on the virtues of karseva and all-round social upliftment. I can think of no better philosophy to light the way as I prepare to discharge my responsibilities as the custodian of Pediatric cancer patients and families corpus fund. It is a privilege that I humbly accept on behalf of the team that is driving this initiative. Under the able leadership of Shri Ram Singh Rathor, we hope to build a sustainable platform to assist cancer patients and their families that need support during their treatment. Let us all unite in this cause. Let us divide the effort, and let us multiply our intent and our resources to help cancer patients.
